This site has changed servers and moved to a content management system.  I will try to get more information back on my site soon, but the more time spent on the web means less time for radio.....

Some of my pages that were not radio related will be moved to my personal site www.gabtown.net . That site like this one will take a while to restore.

I have been experimenting with a MEPT ( Manned Experimental Propagation Transmitter ) on 30 meters from time to time. Right now I also have a HiFer beacon in the works for the 22 meter unlicensed experimenter band. Once the HiFer beacon is running I will have another 30m MEPT under construction. This one will be able to operate several modes and will just be fun to build and experiment with.
